Rebecca's Reviews

C.A.R. Movie Stars and Seniors,

Happy New Year! I hope that everyone had a great new year and a wonderful holiday season. I know that the time spent at home over my break from college was well appreciated. It is during the holiday season that we look back on our year and reflect upon all the good we have done and what we are grateful for. It is on this passing of the year that I have realized all the good that PA C.A.R. has done for surrounding communities and all of the progress we have made in raising funds for this years state project and national project.

I encourage all of you and your societies to continue to enter state contests and national contests. Your participation in these contests helps make the state and national societies run smoothly. It is with your help and determination that we can make a difference in preserving our history.

Members and seniors I urge you to get out the word of C.A.R. to your communities, so that our membership numbers may continually increase, so that we do have a net gain in membership this year. I encourage all of you to follow the lights and the cameras and begin taking action in your societies. Remember to adhere to deadlines regarding postmarking for dues, new members, and contests.

I encourage all of the members and seniors of PA C.A.R. to attend this year's PA C.A.R. State Conference to be held on March 18 &19, 2005 in Lancaster, Pennsylvania at the Best Western and Eden Resort. It is at this event that contest winners will be revealed and prizes will be handed out. I also encourage all of you to attend this years' National Convention to be held in Washington, DC. Both of these events promise to be very good times.

I wish you all a wonderful new year and I ensure that you all are busily working on C.A.R. contests and reports. State conference is just around the corner.

Remember: Lights, Camera, Action with PA C.A.R.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Shaw

PA C.A.R. State President 2004-2005

Hogan's Headliners

Greetings to PA actors, producers, directors and stage crew,

With Spring around the corner, C.A.R. members are busily conducting final program activities and preparing contest entries. The Presidential inauguration took place on January 20 which reminds us of two Presidents who shaped the country that President Bush now leads. February 21 marks the date we remember them.

George Washington believed in democracy. Once he decided that the Colonies should break with England, he never wavered. During the War for Independence, it was suggested that he declare himself "king" of the fledgling country. General Washington replied that we were fighting for freedom–for a new form of self-government–not a trade of one king for another king. Even after the war when he was a hero, he retired to his home, Mount Vernon and allowed others to develop the government. When he was asked to lead a new government several years later, he agreed for the sake of the survival of the country. He was a humble man but strong in character. In the years of his presidency, he dealt with partisan politics, struggle over the power of the three Branches of government, development of the first Departments and international diplomacy. Without his leadership and personal charisma, the young nation would not have survived. You can imagine the task faced by new countries today with the same internal struggles the young U.S. faced.

Also in February, we remember Abraham Lincoln who also believed deeply in democracy and the preservation of the still young country. The government was less than 75 years old when he became President. Lincoln also had strong character. He was ahead of his time in his views on freedom and equality and faced internal party opposition and power struggles in addition to half the country hating him. His determination and belief in this country inspired enough people to fight for the Union. And the world was watching! The world has been watching the United States ever since as it grew to the giant we are today. Let us not forget the traits of those men who came before us and preserved the young nation. Each of us should act as if the world is watching us. I hope they see patriotism and love of country, humility and commitment to equality.

And the rest of C.A.R. will be watching us on March 18-19 in Lancaster, PA at State Conference. Be there when the Lights go on, the Camera is focused on PA C.A.R. and our Action throughout the year is reported!

Lights! Camera! Action!

Lights, Camera, Action.....jump into action and help promote membership in PA C.A.R! There are several ways to do so such as: Encouraging all your members to invite friends and family to join in on the fun as you attend events and have meetings, always remember to send your newsletter to all members so they have the schedule of events throughout the year, and try to make your activities known around your community so our organization is noticed. For other ideas look to your membership chairman and try to enter his/her contest. Remember to thank all your members for helping you promote membership! Good Luck and hope to see everyone at all the upcoming events as we jump into action with PA C.A.R.

Elizabeth McKinney Society
with Lewis & Clark

The Elizabeth McKinney Society has been very busy learning about Lewis and Clark and the Corps of Discovery Expedition. On December 4th , they presented a Christmas program by decorating a tree with memories of the trek. Pictured are society president Shannon Gallagher and Sean Gallagher as Lewis and Clark with DAR regent, Mrs. Sroka. Then our society shared the program with the Parkinson's Ferry Society at our joint Christmas tea. We took a group picture before we decorated the tree with guests of honor State President Rebecca Shaw and Senior State Presidnet, Miss Hogan. Of course, Michael Licciardello had to flirt with our president ... lucky Michael.

General Anthony Wayne Society

On December 19, the General Anthony Wayne Society marched over to Valley Forge to celebrate "March In" at the park. As you can probably guess, that's the day when George Washington marched into Valley Forge with his troops in 1777. Cookies, cider, and lots of people dressed in Revolutionary outfits were there. We were also very excited because our new member Anita Baker was there PARTICIPATING in the reenactment camps. She looked great and we were so proud of her!! We know that so many people learned a little more about Valley Forge and its importance in the American Revolution that day.

ELIZABETH MCKINNEY AND PARKINSON'S FERRY SOCIETIES' ANNUAL CHRISTMAS TEA HONORING STATE PRESIDENT REBECCA SHAW

On Saturday, December 11, 2004, in the snow, Members from Elizabeth McKinney Society and Parkinson's Ferry Society held a joint Christmas Tea honoring State President, Becky Shaw. Since this was the 10th anniversary of this event, it was a pleasure having the State President and State Senior President, Miss Rosemary Hogan present and we appreciated the fact they traveled from West Virginia University and Washington, DC, respectively. Mrs. Cyndy Sweeney supplied the Conservation Project skit about Lewis & Clark. Members had fun as they traced the footsteps of Lewis and Clark as they adorned an evergreen with ornaments depicting items Lewis & Clark encountered in their travels. A trivia word game was played later at the tea. Three prospective members: Ashley Coffield, Kayla Coffield and Breanna Coffield as well as pee-wee members Mary and Michael Licciardello were surprised with gifts from Santa. We especially thank Mrs. Cyndy Sweeney for her constant love and support and the terrific games, skit and gifts; Mr. and Mrs. McConnell for the use of the church hall; and Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Willis for helping Santa with his needs.

MOVIES, MOVIES, MOVIES……..

Parkinson's Ferry Society has been busy this year with lights, cameras and action as its teenage girl members have taken this theme to their favorite activity: Watching movies, eating popcorn and having a sleepover. Parkinson's Ferry Society held an American History Meeting/ Sleepover on Saturday, September 25 at the Willis/ Segeleon home. After the normal business meeting the members played a game of four square under lights in the backyard. Later in the evening, a movie was presented on George Washington and a sleepover was held. On Saturday, November 14, 2004, Parkinson's Ferry Society once again shined lights, cameras and action at its President's Meeting when they met at the new home of the Ross family. A movie about President James Buchanan and his home "Wheatland" was held. Three prospective members were present and took applications home with them.

State President's Program:

The Theme "Lights, Camera, Action" comes from the state project. The state project is to raise money to restore film reels of a day honoring James Buchanan. These films are of Wheatland Day, a day honoring James Buchanan in 1959, at his home, Wheatland, Lancaster, PA . The money raised will let the public view these film reels that haven't been viewed. Please support the state project. We have brought up the lights, we're rolling the camera, and its your turn to make the Action!

Hannah Edmiston
State Corresponding Secretary

The state project this year is to raise fund for the restoration of a film celebrating James Buchanan. You can support this project by participating in the state president's contest, asking for donations, and working to earn money. We have all been working hard to reach the goal to restore these film reels. Join us in Lancaster during State Conference to visit and tour "Wheatland, the home of James Buchanan, Pennsylvania's only United States President.

2004-2005 National Project Retracing the Footsteps of the American Revolution

The Revolutionary War was a fight for Independence. It began in 1775, at the Battle of Lexington. The shot fired during this battle were known as the shots heard around the world. On May 10, 1775, the Americans captured Fort Ticonderoga and its artillery. At Bunker Hill, the British drove the Americans from Bunker Hill, on June 17, 1775.

The next year on November 16, 1776, the American Commander surrendered Fort Washington to the Hessians. On December 26, 1775, George Washington crossed the Delaware River and surprised the Hessians Brigade and defeated it. The following winter the Americans camped at Valley Forger under terrible conditions.

On June 28, 1778, the American troops held the field at the Battle of Monmouth. It was the longest battle of the revolution. In May 1779,, Major General A. Prevost ended the siege of Charleston when Major General Lincoln approached.

Brigadier General Daniel Morgan defeated Lt. Colonel Banister Tarlet, on January 17, 1781 at the Battle of Cowpens. This was the turning point of the Revolution, and the British never recovered. Finally on October 19, 1781, Cornwallis surrendered his army. The American won Independence.

The National Project will raise fund for a coloring book for all children to Retrace their Footsteps of the American Revolution and the Battle of Monmouth!

An Article for the Newsletter

All members are encouraged to write articles to inform the readers of Historical interests. By writing articles, the writers show their views on local or national places of interest. When the article is published, everyone that subscribes to the state newsletter or the C.A.R. Magazine will gain a better knowledge of the landmark. They might even visit it to learn more. If all the state officers and chairman write articles, then the newsletter and the Magazine will have input from all over the state. The younger members can contribute by entering a game or a puzzle to better inform. All societies should also encourage members to write articles so that the new members will join in and come to State Workshop, State Conference and National Convention.!

President's Day Salute to George Washington

George Washington's will stated strongly that he loved his wife dearly. He cared more about Martha's health after his death than the distribution of his possessions. He was a very powerful writer, so his will was very well written. He also was a very concerned about his business issues, in his will. He asked his wife to destroy his first will the day he died. Washington has done many great things during his life, so people were expecting great language from his will, which George Washington most definitely delivered.

In the Footsteps of Lewis & Clark

The Louisiana Purchase was clearly a defining event in our nation's history. The action taken by Thomas Jefferson enlarged our country to further develop into the great nation it is today.

The Louisiana Purchase extended from the Gulf of Mexico, in proximity with the current day New Orleans, to the most northern part of our country reaching Canada. The Purchase was so large, it nearly doubled the size of our country at that time This land was used to move our footsteps toward western colonization.

Thomas Jefferson, President at the time, and benefactor of the Purchase believed that this land was necessary for our country to build am important foundation for exploration and cultural advancement. New Orleans caught the attention of Jefferson with its highly active and influential social life and the inspirational culture much needed in our fresh American society.

The essential territory and cultural influence was an example of our nations ability to be the greatest nation among others.

Captain Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, along with 31 soldiers went on an expedition to explore the Northern Great Plains. It took two years and four months of blizzards, bears, floods, hunger, illness, and uncertainty. Lewis & Clark would probably have had a harder time without a young Indian guide named, Sacagawea. She was a lot of help to them. Whenever they needed anything, she could help them. Lewis & Clark, and Sacagawea had blazed a new trail.

John Morton Society Follows the Footsteps of Lewis & Clark

John Morton Society presented a program to the Lansdowne Chapter DAR on the Footsteps of Lewis & Clark. The children explored the animals they encountered, including the Grizzly Bear and the Prairie Dog. They introduced the Indian Tribes they met. They highlighted the waterways they had to navigate. The children dressed in costume and wore paper moccasins. Mrs. Hogan shared her pictures from a recent trip to Montana and the sites of the Corps of Discovery.

Lansdowne Chapter presented John Morton Society with a donation for their projects. Everyone shared refreshments of food that the Corps would have eaten, including an authentic salted ham, fruit biscuits, and Jefferson cookies.
